Japan's urban masses may be "overcome by modernity," but they seem to like it (p. 101). Typical are the views of Marxist Hirabayashi Hatsunosuke, endorsing the new emerging mass culture precisely because it is of the people. This noisy new culture (epitomized by radio and cinema) was characterized by speed and excitement.

"Overcome by Modernity" is the product of a major scholar working at full stretch at the height of his career. It is informed by an astonishing breadth of learning and depth of reflection, and demonstrates a seriousness of intellectual engagement that can only be salutary in our current situation."--William Haver, Binghamton University
